2022 IMPACT REPORT

Rescuing Quality Food to Nourish and Strengthen Our Community
This past year has been another record year for Aloha Harvest. In late spring 2022, we reached a major operational milestone, over 30 million pounds of food rescued and redistributed since our organization’s inception in 1999. At the end of the year, we have already topped 32 million pounds. That is the equivalent to over 6,500 MT of CO2 emissions sequestered, 25 million+ meals served, or $84 million+ saved! Unfortunately, this is an indication that the ongoing supply chain disruptions, inflation/shrinkflation/‘eggflation’, increasing prices of housing, fuel, food, and other essentials is severely affecting the financial stability of many families. In June, we released a bold 3-year Strategic Plan to scale the impact of our mission. In the fall, we were blessed by The GIFT (Giving Inspiration For Tomorrow) Foundation with a generous donation to expand our fleet. We also ended 2022 on a high note with our largest one-time donation, over 26 tons of fresh fruits, vegetables, and eggs.

We look forward to achieving more in 2023 as we work with our donors and community partners to reduce the impacts of food waste to our economy and environment and improve the lives of the most vulnerable people in Hawai‘i. The running statistics reads as follows:

1 out of 6 individuals in Hawai‘i is food insecure and rely on some form of food assistance
Nearly 40% of the food produced globally never gets eaten
24% of the materials in our landfill is food waste, more than any other single material in our everyday trash
Food waste is the third-leading contributor to greenhouse gas emissions

If we want to change this narrative, we must think progressively and act boldly. We have to be comfortable with being uncomfortable and do the hard things. We are starting off 2023 strong by launching our joint composting efforts with small businesses in Chinatown, local nonprofits, and the City & County of Honolulu. We are drafting a comprehensive Fund Development Strategy to support all of our goals and objectives, and we are grateful for your continued support. Whether you are a generous food or financial donor, a dedicated volunteer, or an enthusiastic cheerleader of what we do, you are incredibly appreciated. We encourage you to join us at one of our monthly coffee meet-ups, or one of our future “Aloha Friday” events. Stay connected by subscribing to our newsletter or following us on social media!

With our deepest gratitude and sincere thanks,

Phil Acosta, Executive Director

The Largest Single Donation Aloha Harvest Has Ever Received!

In December 2022, on behalf of Saint Louis School, D. Otani Produce organized the largest single donation Aloha Harvest has ever received of 26 tons of fresh produce and eggs to distribute to families in time for the holidays. Matson provided their shipping and freight services free of charge and Y. Fukunaga Products graciously provided their warehouse space and equipment to staff and volunteers from both Saint Louis School and Aloha Harvest to assemble the produce boxes.

Program Overview

The Meals with Aloha program provides kūpuna free weekly meal sets and additional social services as needed. Meal sets are designed with kūpuna-focused nutrition in mind using a unique aggregation of purchased and rescued excess food.

A Team Effort

Beginning in August 2022, Aloha Harvest has helped to deliver high quality, local produce to Touch A Heart whose team then makes into delicious meals for the Meals With Aloha program. Both Aloha Harvest and Touch A Heart provide volunteers who deliver the sets of 3 meals to the kūpuna every Wednesday. The community health workers from Hawai’i Public Health Institute (HIPHI) work with the kūpuna on the health assessments, providing social services as needed.

Social services and additional support provided by the program’s Community Health Workers included:

- SNAP and Veteran Aid benefits
- Caregiver education
- LIHEAP (energy bill assistance)
- Digital literacy (using laptops, cell phones etc.)
- Medicare
- Fresh food delivery from Farm Link
- Weatherization assistance program (reduces energy cost for eligible houses)
- ACP (Affordable Connectivity Program, help low-income households connect to the internet)

The Meals With Aloha program is also supported by the City & County of Honolulu and the Kūpuna Food Security Coalition as part of the Kūpuna Collective. Health assessment data will support the City’s database for support of future programs.

“ I really like the meals, they are very healthy with fresh veggies.

Before Meals with Aloha, I was going and buying fast food and plate lunches. That was so unhealthy, but that was the only thing I could eat that was already made.

I have a hard time moving around and standing for a long time so I can not cook meals for myself.

I also like how friendly the staff are at Touch A Heart when I pick up my meals. I am grateful to be receiving these meals.

We heard about all of the great work Aloha Harvest does and we immediately wanted to work with them. Not only did Aloha Harvest assist with a nice donation to the community, but they quickly assembled a team of volunteers to assist with a large harvest and maintenance of our avocado orchard. This was an otherwise overwhelming task for a small ranch and farm like ours. We love their mission and we look forward to working with Aloha Harvest in the future.

In December 2022, Sunset Ranch, donated our largest Community Harvest yet — 2,275 pounds of avocados! We were honored to help with their first-ever harvest of their avocado orchard from their 30-acre north shore property. Sunset Ranch is one of Hawai‘i’s first private conservation easement, a popular wedding venue, its property also has a horse ranch, fruit tree farm, aquaculture site, and botanical garden.

What is Community Harvest?
Community Harvest is Aloha Harvest’s gleaning program designed to rescue excess produce growing on O‘ahu. With the support of volunteers, crops are harvested growing in yards, gardens, and farms all over O‘ahu and then immediately donated to local social service agencies.

Volunteer Meet-ups
In September 2022, we started a monthly Volunteer Meet-up to strengthen our community connections. Existing and new volunteers, even food donors and recipients, have joined our meet-ups to talk story and learn how to get involved with Aloha Harvest.

Each month, we choose a different local business to support and treat our volunteers to a cup of coffee or snack. Come join us and talk story! Follow us on social media @alohaharvest or subscribe to our volunteer portal alohaharvest.org/volunteer to be notified about upcoming meet-ups.
New Team Members

In the beginning of 2022, our administrative team had six full-time members and has grown to accommodate five more new positions including two interns supporting our marketing & communications and volunteer management. Our driver team also grew from seven to nine staff members.

We’re excited to welcome our most recent team members to join, Cécili and Haleigh!

Cécili Aufang
Volunteer Management Intern

Cécili is a Dietetics major at University of Hawai’i at Mānoa and started off as one of our volunteers! She is currently researching local farms and their impact on food security on O’ahu for her senior thesis portfolio. Outside of work and school, she is an amateur bodybuilder in Women’s Physique Division.

Haleigh Jones
Sustainability Coordinator

Haleigh joins us with a background in sustainable agriculture and environmental plant science. She is the project lead on all our sustainability efforts and initiatives including our special projects O’ahu Compost Project and Community Harvest. In her free time, she loves spending time outdoors, traveling, and trying new cuisines.

Join our team!

To see our current open positions, please visit our website at alohaharvest.org/jobs.

You can also follow us on social media @alohaharvest and subscribe to our email newsletter for the latest open positions.

We are always on the lookout for passionate individuals to join our team and get involved in helping us build a more equitable and sustainable food system. We welcome you to reach out even if we don’t have positions listed.

“Volunteer opportunities that address multiple needs make the most sense for me. Aloha Harvest addresses both food insecurity and the environment. Some of my favorite parts of volunteering are interacting with passionate vendors, fellow volunteers, and recipients at churches.”

Financial Donor
The Rosendin Foundation

“After speaking to our community members and researching the needs of Hawai’i, we recognized that hunger plagued Hawaiians at significantly high levels more than any other issue. We chose to partner with Aloha Harvest because it has found a sustainable and creative approach to solving the food instability issues of Hawai’i.

Partnering with Aloha Harvest has helped to open our organization’s eyes to a sustainable approach to alleviating the food instability issues for an island community like Hawai’i and provides our people the opportunity to embrace nature and farming while providing sustenance to our community.”

Food Donor
Mike Hayashi, Administrative Manager, Japan Airlines, Honolulu

“Our company was looking for ways to reduce food waste in our passenger lounge. We sometimes have a relatively large quantity of untouched leftover hot meal items such as Japanese-style curry and veggies that we discarded in the past. We found out about Aloha Harvest through our research, and it seemed a great fit.

It initially took a while to gain internal approval from our head office as rescuing food is not commonly practiced in Japan over liability concerns.

Partnering with Aloha Harvest has helped to open our organization’s eyes to a sustainable approach to alleviating the food instability issues for an island community like Hawai’i and provides our people the opportunity to embrace nature and farming while providing sustenance to our community.”

Recipient Agency
Pastor Rick, Program Coordinator, Access to Education (ATE), Leeward Community College, Wai’anae Moku

“I have always been a big fan of Aloha Harvest. I think that they provide an essential service that meets the needs of the disadvantaged within our community and even with those that are struggling to make ends meet.

Everyone at Aloha Harvest is friendly and has always been a real pleasure to know and work with.

They are responsive and willing to go the extra mile to make things work for everyone involved.

As a counselor at Leeward Community College, Wai’anae Moku, I coordinate the Access to Education (ATE) program that specifically supports students that were previously incarcerated, in recovery from drug and alcohol and/or were previously in foster care or adoption.

Nearly all my students are from or currently reside on the coast. Some of them were homeless themselves and lived on the beach along the Wai’anae Coast.

Partnering with Aloha Harvest has given our students a means to give back to the homeless community in need of food. While passing out food, our students also have an opportunity to offer words of encouragement and hope and to share how attending college and participating in the ATE program has positively impacted their lives. Our students gain a greater sense of self-efficacy and realization of their value and potential.

It’s definitely a win-win situation. Mahalo nui to the entire Aloha Harvest ‘ohana!”
